No. of villagers used as human shields	33	221

KWAT documentation shows an escalation in attacks and abuses against civilians by the SAC regime's forces in Kachin State and northern Shan State since mid-2022. Compared to the previous 15 months, our data shows a sharp increase in the number of victims of aerial bombardment and the number of villagers forced to be human shields. SAC troops have also begun mass torching of houses in Kachin State.

There continues to be widespread shelling by SAC troops into populated areas. Between May 2022 and July 2023, KWAT documented thirty such incidents, inflicting 61 civilian casualties, including eleven children. There were also twelve cases of arbitrary shooting of civilians, in nine townships, leaving eight civilians dead and six injured.

During the past fifteen months, 441 people have been arbitrarily arrested by SAC authorities in Kachin State and Muse District of northern Shan State, including several leading Kachin religious figures, most notably former KBC head Reverend Dr. Hka Lam Samson. Most of those arrested were accused of links to resistance groups, including 200 men arrested en masse in Hpakant on April 21, 2023. At least thirteen people were beaten during interrogation, and four men are known to have been shot dead by troops after arrest, while twenty-four have disappeared.

Over 200 of those arrested were forced to be human shields by SAC troops, sometimes with fatal results. One group of 70 villagers, including women and girls, forced to ride with SAC troops in two trucks, came under attack from resistance forces, resulting in one woman killed, and six other women and girls injured.

SAC troops are committing sexual violence increasingly brazenly, as highlighted by two recent cases of gang-rape in Kutkai, committed in the same night right in the village where the troops were stationed.

The abuses have intensified amid escalating SAC offensives to secure transport routes in northern Burma – gateways for establishment of infrastructure projects across Burma under China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI). With conventional warfare failing against the resistance forces, the regime is increasingly resorting to collective punishment to try and assert control.

For example, the devastating airstrike on the concert in Hpakant on October 23, 2022, which inflicted over 170 casualties, appears to have been direct retaliation for - heavy SAC losses suffered a day earlier during a failed attempt to seize KIA positions on Lung Ja mountain – the highest vantage point in south-east Kachin State, overlooking the Bhamo-Myitkyina transport artery and the Bhamo-Loije trade route, a key link of the planned China-Myanmar Irrawaddy Economic Belt.

The attacks and abuses have fuelled fresh displacement of nearly 14,000 villagers during the past 15 months, even as SAC has been pushing ahead with plans to close down existing camps in northern Burma housing over 107,000 IDPs. Despite ongoing conflict, over 4,000 IDPs have opted to return to their original villages south of Myitkyina in recent years, due to inability to survive on the meagre rations provided by aid agencies in the camps. However, the SAC's latest operations since July 2023 to secure the Bhamo-Myitkyina road have caused over 1,100 returning IDPs to flee once again.

KWAT calls urgently for increased diplomatic and economic pressure on the SAC regime to stop their escalating attacks on civilians throughout Burma.

KWAT also urges donor countries to step up aid to existing and newly displaced IDPs, prioritizing cross-border channels, and not to support the regime's IDP camp closure program.

Finally, KWAT urges China to stop pushing ahead with its BRI projects in Burma, as they are fueling conflict and abuses. These projects should be cancelled, and no new investments considered until the military regime is removed and elections held under a new federal democratic constitution, guaranteeing free, prior and informed consent of local communities to any new projects.

CHINA INVITING RISK BY BRI ACCELERATION UNDER SAC REGIME

Despite mounting atrocities by the SAC regime against civilians across the country, China is pushing ahead with its planned BRI projects in Burma. Just weeks after the deadly SAC airstrike in Paziky village, Sagaing, on April 11, 2023, that killed 165 villagers, including dozens of women and children, Chinese Foreign Minister Qin Gang met with regime leader Min Aung Hlaing in Naypyidaw on May 2, and promised to “accelerate key cooperation projects of the China-Myanmar Economic Corridor”.¹

BRI projects in northern Burma that have been moving steadily ahead since the coup include the Muse-Mandalay high-speed railway and Muse-Ruili Cross Border Economic Zone in Shan State, and the Kanpiketi-Houqiao Cross Border Economic Cooperation Zone and Myitkyina (or Namjim) Economic Zone in Kachin State. The latter two projects are joint ventures with subsidiaries of the Yunnan Baoshan Hengyi Industrial Group, whose chairperson met with regime officials in Myitkyina in February 2023 to expedite project implementation.

Chair of Yunnan Baoshan Hengyi Industrial Group, Duan Zhiku, meeting with regime officials in February 2023 (<https://news.iresearch.cn/yx/2023/02/461709.shtml>)

Very worryingly, SAC leaders have hinted in recent months that they will restart the Myitsone dam, suspended since 2011, despite overwhelming local opposition to the project. China has never given up on restarting this giant dam, as well as cascades of other dams on the Irrawaddy headwaters, all slated for hydropower export. The over 2,500 villagers from the Myitsone confluence forcibly relocated to “model villages” since 2010 have never been allowed to return home despite the suspension of the dam, and still receive rations from the project holder, China’s State Power Investment Corporation (SPIC).

All decision-making about planned investments has been made by the Naypyidaw authorities, without the free, prior and informed consent of local communities. The fact that the BRI projects all lie in contested territories, where the regime’s control is being increasingly challenged, means that China is taking a huge risk by pushing ahead with implementation at this time. Not only will the regime be unable to guarantee security, but China will be directly complicit in any abuses committed while trying to secure the projects.

Already, our mapping shows that most of the human rights abuses by SAC forces in northern Burma since the February 2021 coup are located alongside planned BRI projects and transport corridors. The latest SAC offensive since July 2023 to try and secure the Bhamo-Myitkyina road link has already led to fresh abuses against civilians, and caused returning IDPs to flee once again.

AIRSTRIKES ON CIVILIAN AREAS, MASS TORCHING OF HOUSES

Airstrikes during May 2022-July 2023
Date	Township	No. of casualties
8 Aug, 2022	Hpakant (Sezin)	2 men & 1 pregnant woman injured
9 Aug, 2022	Hpakant (Sezin)	1 boy killed, 1 woman & 1 boy injured
23 Oct, 2022	Hpakant	69 killed, over 100 injured
3 Jan, 2023	Myitkyina	2 women & 2 men injured
27 Feb, 2023	Shwegu	2 men injured
25 Mar, 2023	Shwegu	3 cows killed
5,7,8,9 Apr, 2023	Shwegu	6 men killed
17 Jun, 2023	Hpakant	2 men killed (drone bomb)
30 Jun, 2023	Hpakant	1 woman killed (drone bomb)
25 Jul, 2023	Muse	1 man killed

During the past fifteen months, the main areas of Kachin State where the regime has carried out airstrikes have been Hpakant and Shwegu townships, mostly during ground operations against KIA and PDF forces. However, the most devastating airstrike – on the concert in A Nang Pa on October 23, 2022 – was launched in an area where there was no active fighting, with full knowledge that large numbers of civilians would be harmed.

The A Nang Pa airstrike appears to have been direct retaliation for heavy losses suffered by SAC during their attempts in October 2022 to seize control of KIA positions on Lung Ja mountain, east of Momauk town -- the highest vantage point in southeast Kachin State, overlooking the Bhamo-Myitkyina road link and the strategically important Bhamo-Loije trade route, part of the planned China-Myanmar Irrawaddy Economic Belt. Seizure of the mountaintop would allow SAC forces to directly shell KIA territories along the eastern Kachin-China border, including its administrative centres of Laiza and Maijayang. Hundreds of SAC troops from ID 88 and Momauk-based LIB 437 were deployed in the attack on Lung Ja Bum, backed up by airstrikes and artillery shelling. However, KIA managed to repel the assault, and on October 22 alone killed over 40 SAC troops, including a commanding officer. The A Nang Pa airstrike took place the day afterwards, on October 23.

In two of the areas where airstrikes took place – in Sezin village of Hpakant, and in villages south of Shwegu town -- SAC troops also carried out large scale torching of houses, showing clearly their intent to inflict collective punishment on local civilian populations.

In a worrying development, since June 2023, SAC-aligned troops have started using drones to bomb civilian targets. On June 17 and again on June 30, local militia led by Min Ze Thant carried out drone bomb attacks around Warazup village, which lies on the Ledo Road linking to the Indian border. The bombs killed two male villagers on June 17, and killed a 53-year-old woman on June 30, who was on her way to her farm.

Another disturbing recent development is that SAC troops have tried to cover up the fact that they have bombed civilian targets by dressing casualties in resistance uniforms. On July 25, after a 40-year-old villager was killed by an airstrike on Sai Hkau village in Muse township, SAC troops came and took away his body, dressed it in a TNLA uniform and then abandoned the corpse in a remote location miles from his village, where it was found six days later.

Burma Army airstrike on civilian area, Sezin village, Hpakant 8-9 Aug 2022

AIRSTRIKES AND TORCHING OF HOUSES IN SEZIN, HPAKANT

Heavy fighting had broken out in Sezin in early July 2022, with KIA and PDF forces seeking to take control of this area from the SAC and their Shan Ni militia allies. By early August, many of the Sezin villagers had already fled to shelter in the village of Tarmakhan, 20 miles away, on the road to Hpakant, but some still remained in their homes.

At 2 pm on August 8, after fighting between KIA and SAC troops in the morning, the SAC launched an airstrike on Sezin village. A family sheltering in a foxhole near their home were hit by a bomb, and three people were seriously injured, including a woman who was 7 months pregnant.

Early in the morning of August 9, the KIA seized two SAC posts in Sezin. That night, two fighter jets dropped bombs on the village, and at midnight SAC troops burned down 374 civilian houses, about half of the total number of houses in the village. A villager described how his 12-year-old son was killed and his wife and other 15-year-old son seriously injured by the airstrike.

In the evening at about 6:30 pm, when I was taking a shower at my neighbor's house, a SAC aircraft dropped a bomb near our house. My elder son shouted to me "Dad! Mom's been injured!" I ran to the house and found my youngest son, had been badly injured in his left shoulder, and there was a big hole in his belly. "Dad, I can't...." he said, and died a few minutes later. Beside him, my wife was seriously injured in her legs, and bleeding heavily. I shouted to our neighbors to help us. But no one came. I said to my elder son, "Stay here for a few minutes. I'll find a car and come back." I went around the village. It was raining and I could hear the sound of gunshots in the village. I found a local rescue car on the way. The keys were in the car and so I drove it to my home. Actually, I can't drive a car, but I managed. When I arrived home, I put my youngest son's dead body inside a room, and drove my wife and my elder son to Tarmakhan village near Hpakant. I requested a monk from Sezin to look after my son's dead body. At about 9:30 pm we arrived at Tarmakhan public hospital. There was a lack of surgical materials, so we went to the military hospital in Myitkyina. My wife had to have both her legs amputated below the knee. My elder son was also slightly injured in his belly. I heard that the Burma Army burned down our village, so we didn't go back home. I don't know whether our house has been burned down.

AIRSTRIKES AND TORCHING OF HOUSES IN SHWEGU

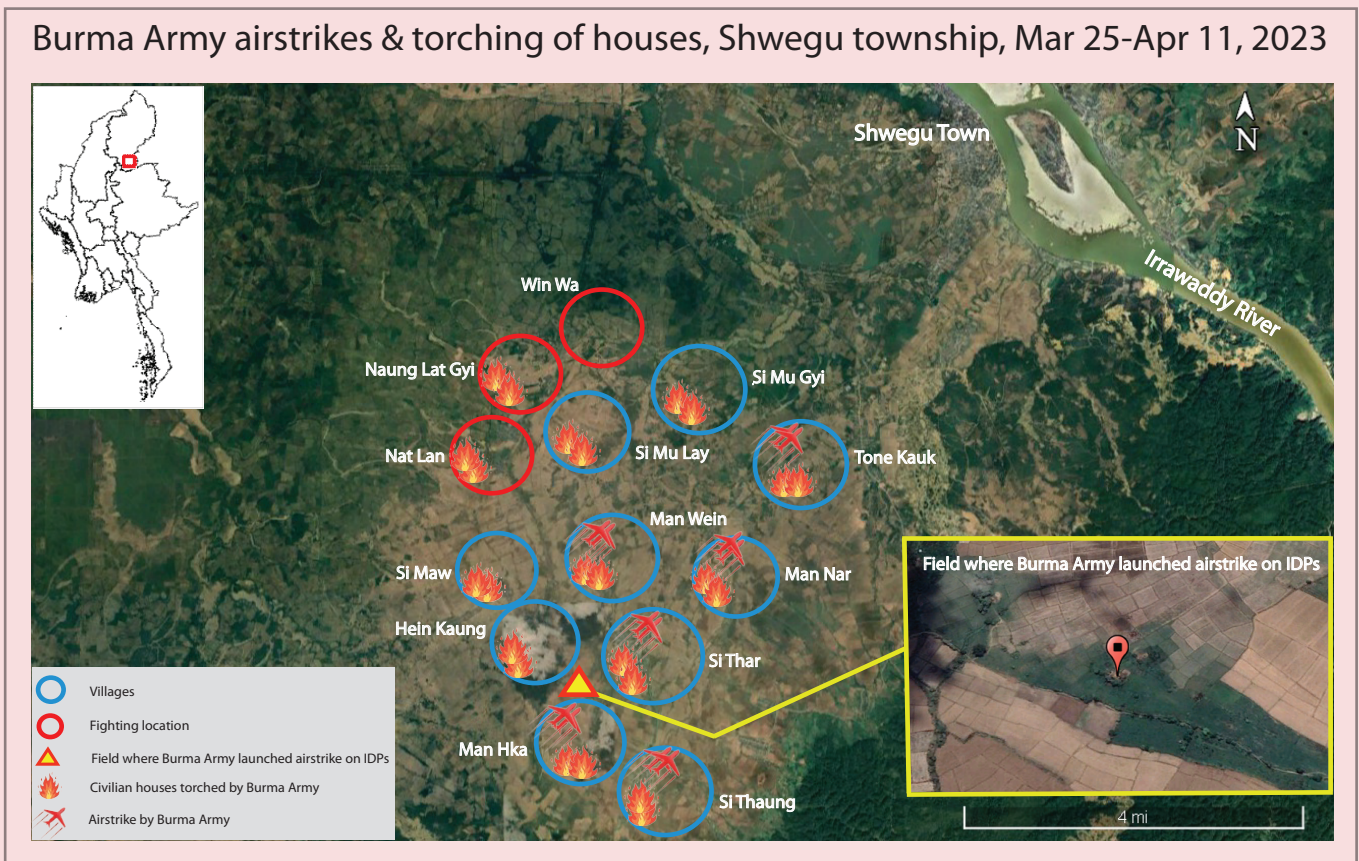

Villages in southern Shwegu are a stronghold of KIA-allied PDF forces, who have been launching frequent guerrilla attacks on SAC targets, including the Shwegu police station and the main army checkpoint on the Shwegu-Mandalay highway. SAC has therefore used ground and air attacks to try and dislodge the PDF from these villages, and also secure control of gold mining in the area.

On February 27, 2023, a SAC jet fighter dropped bombs along the Irrawaddy river southeast of Shwegu town, between Chyun Taw and Tin Baw Inn villages, killing two men and injuring two others who were mining for gold.

On March 23, there was heavy fighting between KIA and SAC troops of LID 66, 77 and 88 at Win Wa, Nat Lan, and Naung Let Gyi villages, south of Shwegu, during which SAC troops captured over 20 villagers, forcing them to cook and dig fox-holes for them. Most of the other villagers fled to seek shelter in surrounding jungle or in towns.

On March 25, two SAC jet fighters dropped bombs on Si Thar, Man Wein, and Si Thaug villages, south of Shwegu. Two houses were burned down and five cows killed. On March 30, SAC troops began torching civilian houses in three villages, Si Mu Gyi, Man Wein, and Si Mu Lay. From April 5 to 11, they continued torching houses in these and nine other villages, burning altogether 964 homes, over half of the total number of houses in the twelve villages.

On 5, 7, 8 and 9 April, the SAC carried out airstrikes on Si Thar, Si Thaug, Man Nar, Man Kha, Man

Wing, and Tone Kauk Shwegu villages and the surrounding jungle. A bomb killed 6 villagers and injured 2 others from Si Thar village who were hiding in the jungle.

ANALYSIS OF THE A NANG PA AIRSTRIKE: WILFUL TARGETING OF CIVILIANS

Analysis of the circumstances of the A Nang Pa airstrike provides strong evidence that the SAC leadership were well aware that it would inflict a large number of civilian casualties, despite their claims in a press conference after the airstrike², that “There were no civilians at all (in A Nang Pa) ... only KIA members and PDF terrorists and their affiliates were there We have no idea about any annual celebration”.

1. A Nang Pa: a civilian trading post

A Nang Pa is a small trading post situated on a flat strip of land along the A Nang stream (“Pa” means flat in Kachin), close to its confluence with the Uru River, about 20 miles north of Hpakant town. During the KIA ceasefire period between 1994 and 2011, the KIA’s 6th Battalion, based at nearby Ginsi village, used A Nang Pa as a training site. After war re-erupted in 2011, the Burma Army drove the KIA’s 6th Battalion out of Ginsi and set up military camps there.

In 2018, KIA established their new Brigade 9 in the Hpakant area, but kept their military camps in forested hill locations, for security purposes and so as not to endanger civilian populations. They did not re-establish a military camp at A Nang Pa, which remained a small civilian trading post.

Thus, the SAC military’s claim³ after the October 23 airstrike, that “the exact site of the incident took place at the base of KIA Brigade (9)” is false.

2. Hundreds of civilians passed SAC military checkpoint to attend KIO anniversary event

Local community leaders had decided to hold a series of events at A Nang Pa to mark the KIO’s 62nd anniversary on October 25, 2022. This included a four-day constitutional training from October 19 to 22, attended by over 200 civilians, mainly from the Hpakant area.

³ <https://infosheet.org/node/3515>

Most of the civilian participants arrived on October 18, travelling in cars and on motorbikes along the main road from Hpakant. All these vehicles passed through the Burma Army's checkpoint at Ginsi to reach A Nang Pa, but none were stopped. Usually, all vehicles were forced to stop, and passengers ordered to dismount by armed soldiers, who checked their ID cards and baggage.

On October 22, more civilian guests arrived by car along the road via Ginsi. This included several famous Kachin singers who planned to perform at the anniversary event, as well as some businessmen. Again, none of these guests were stopped and questioned at the Ginsi checkpoint, which was manned by troops of Burma Army ID 33, in charge of security in the Hpakant area since May 2018.

3. Bombing of buildings sure to contain large numbers of civilians

On October 23, a golf contest was held at A Nang Pa during the day, and in the evening, a dinner party and concert were held for KIA officers and visiting businessmen at a meeting hall at the northern end of A Nang Pa. Apart from the businessmen, dozens of other civilians were at the hall, including those serving food and performing singers.

Starting at 8:30 pm, in the middle of the singing performance, three jet fighters from Tada-U air base in the Mandalay Region, came and dropped three bombs on the dinner hall, the nearby kitchen and one of the sleeping quarters – all buildings sure to contain a large number of civilians.

A woman from Hpakant, one of the civilians attending the training who had already gone to bed, described the bombing:

“In the evening of October 23, there was a dinner party for leaders in the hall. We were told by a leader there would be a dinner party for us on October 24. I went to bed early that night. I was just about to go to sleep when I heard the sound of a jet fighter and then an explosion. I didn't know where the bomb dropped but I ran away to the hillside to take shelter. When I looked back, I saw the hall was burning. Then I saw another aircraft come and drop another bomb. I even felt some small stones hit me. After the jet fighters had gone, a man told us to move from this area, in case the SAC military bombed again. I think he was a KIA soldier. After that, I and the people around me followed the man. That night we hid at a KIA camp. The next morning, we went back to take our clothes. At that time there were a lot of dead bodies lying on the ground. I was shocked to see so many had died. After that, the KIA soldiers took us via a short cut. There were about 50 of us leaving together. On October 24, we slept at a KIA post. On October 25, we arrived home. When I got home, my youngest daughter, who is three years old, said, “Mom, why are you coming back even though you died?” She had overheard her grandmother talking on the phone to other people.”

During this time, there was still an internet blackout in Hpakant, imposed since August 2021, and phone access was very limited at A Nang Pa, making it very difficult for desperate family members to get news of who had survived the attack.

4. SAC blockage of medical access for the wounded

69 people were killed immediately by the airstrikes, and over 100 wounded, some critically. Early the next morning, drivers of civilian vehicles tried to take the wounded along the main road for treatment at hospitals in Hpakant or Myitkyina, but were blocked by SAC troops at the Ginsi checkpoint. Unlike before the anniversary event, no vehicles were allowed to pass, including those arriving from Hpakant trying to bring medical help.

It was therefore necessary for the wounded to be driven on jungle roads bypassing the checkpoint, which took much longer, delaying urgently needed treatment and causing the death of at least ten more people.

On 25th October, the SAC military authorities imposed a curfew in Hpakant from 6 pm to 6 am. They forbade the sale of materials used for surgery, and warned that if any medical doctors treated those injured by the airstrike, they would be arrested under Article 17/1 of the Unlawful Associations Act.

Most of the families of civilians killed in the airstrike were not only prevented from travelling to attend the burial of the bodies, but had to hold funeral services in secret at their homes for fear of reprisals by the authorities

SHELLING OF CIVILIAN AREAS

Time period	No. of shelling incidents	Townships (no. of incidents)	SAC battalions (where known)	No. of civilian casualties
May 2022 – Jul 2023	30	Kutkai (8), Hpakant (9), Muse (2), Momauk (3), Bhamo (1), Mohnyin (2), Waimaw (2), Shwegu (2), Mansi (1)	ID 33, ID 88, ID 99, IB 40, IB 45, IB 123, LIB 437, LIB 521, LIB 58	11 killed (incl. 1 child), 50 injured (incl. 11 children)

Between May 2022 and July 2023, KWAT has documented thirty incidents of SAC troops firing shells indiscriminately into populated areas, killing eleven civilians and injuring fifty, including even children. The frequent and widespread nature of such shelling, carried out in nine townships by at least nine SAC battalions, shows clearly that this is a systematic practice.

In some cases, the shelling occurred during fighting between KIA and SAC forces in the vicinity, and appear to be a form of collective punishment for battle losses. For example, the Burma Army twice fired shells from its LIB 437 military base into Momauk town during its failed operation to seize the KIA’s strategic mountaintop posts at Lung Ja which began on October 22, 2022.

However, in most cases there was no fighting nearby at the time, showing that civilian targets are being shelled simply as a punitive terror tactic.

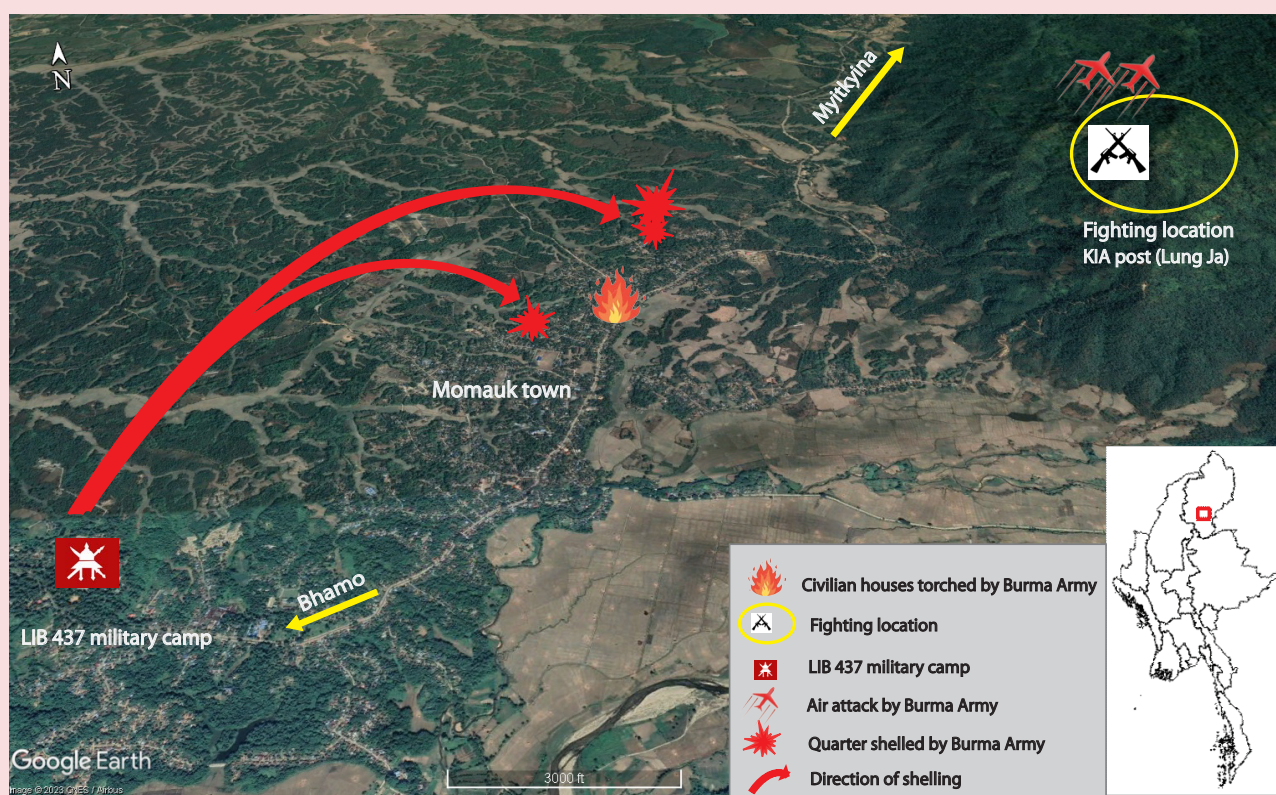

For example, on June 17, 2022, SAC troops from Kutkai-based IB 45 suddenly shelled Ga Leng IDP camp in Kutkai, killing a 56-year-old woman and her 28-year-old daughter, and injuring a 70-year-old man.

Similarly, on the night of November 3, for no apparent reason, SAC troops from IB 45 suddenly shelled the Kachin Theological College in Kutkai, injuring four male students.

SAC troops have also fired shells at civilian targets in KIA-controlled areas, without any immediate provocation, apparently as a warning to KIA against escalation of fighting. On October 30, 2022, SAC fired shells at Mung Lai Hkyet village, near Laiza, and on November 5, fired shells into the Mai Ja Yang residential area. Fortunately, no one was injured, but local civilians, including thousands of IDPs, were terrified by the shelling.

ARBITRARY SHOOTING OF CIVILIANS

Time period	No. of shooting incidents	Townships (no. of incidents)	SAC battalions (where known)	No. of civilian casualties
May 2022 – July 2023	12	Hpakant (2), Danai (1) Mansi (1), Waimaw (2), Myitkyina (1), Kutkai (2) Mogaung (1), Shwegu (1), Mohnyin (1)	ID 33, LIB 384, LIB 390	8 killed, 6 injured

There were twelve incidents of arbitrary shooting of civilians, in nine townships, leaving eight civilians dead and six injured.

Burma Army shelling of civilian area, Kutkai town, 3 Nov 2022

In two cases, in Mansi and Kutkai, villagers were injured when SAC troops opened fire into surrounding areas after being attacked by KIA troops.

In four cases, in Danai, Myitkyina, Waimaw and Mohnyin, the villagers were shot because they ran in fear from SAC troops. This included a 36-year-old villager from Myitkyina who was shot and killed in front of his house at night, when he was intending to go and check on his boat. His wife described what happened, and the gratuitous cruelty of the SAC troops in burning his body even though she begged them not to.

On 18 September, my husband Mr. Le Me Di and I attended the Church. Afterwards, we went to our relative's house. At about 7 pm we went back home. That night my family went to bed early. After my 2-year-old son and I fell asleep at about 8:30 pm, my husband got up. He brought a homemade gun and planned to go to the Mali River to look at the boat used for gold mining. He locked the door from the outside. Just as he arrived at the fence, he saw some SAC soldiers in uniform so he immediately ran back to the house. A soldier shot him, hitting him in the back and killing him. I tried to get out of the house but the door was locked. The soldier pulled my husband's dead body far from the house and they brought wood to burn the body. I could see them from the house and begged them not to burn him. But no one listened. Some soldiers then tried to break open the locked door. My mom, who stays close to us, shouted at me to open the window. When I opened the window, the soldiers entered our house, searched everywhere, and took a smart phone and ten thousand kyats. The soldier told me to just stay in the house, I told the soldier, "Please don't burn the body. It is against our culture. I didn't do anything to you. I just want to take my husband's dead body." But the soldier didn't allow it and burned the body. My mom was trying to come to me, but the soldier did not allow her. When the soldier burned the body, I fell unconscious to the ground. After the soldier went away, my mom come and woke me up. By that time it was already 4 am.

In three incidents in Waimaw, Hpakant and Kutkai, three men were shot and killed because they failed to stop their motorbikes when ordered to by SAC troops. A mentally challenged woman was shot dead when walking past a SAC military camp in Mogaung.

A male villager was shot dead by a SAC soldier when fleeing with his wife to take shelter in a temple during fighting in Sezin in August 2022. His wife described the incident:

On 8 August, SAC and KIA were fighting at Sezin, so some villagers called us to flee to Hawng Pa. But my husband and I decided to hide in the village. On 9 August, the fighting situation got more serious, so my husband told me to take shelter in the Buddhist temple, while he hid in a foxhole at the house. When I arrived at the temple the SAC attacked the KIA with a jet fighter, so I felt it was not safe and I moved again to my relative's house. On that day, I heard that the monk would help people to leave the village, so the next morning at around 6 am, my husband and I brought some bags and went to the temple. When we were going to arrive at the temple, a SAC soldier shot at us from the police station. The bullet hit my husband's head and he died immediately. The people around us told me to move quickly, or the troops would shoot again. So I ran to the temple. A bullet hit my hat but I wasn't injured. In the afternoon at around 3 pm a drug user helped me to take my husband's dead body and send it to Tarmakhan village, near Hpakant. And I also fled to the IDP camp at Tarmakhan.

ARBITRARY ARRESTS, USE OF CIVILIANS AS HUMAN SHIELDS

Time Period	No. of people arbitrarily arrested	Location	SAC battalions (where known)
May 2022-Jul 2023	441 (including 221 used as human shields)	Danai, Muse, Mohnyin, Mogaung, Bhamo, Hpakant, Shwegu, Myitkyina	IB 13, IB 77, LIB 103, LIB 385, LIB 390, LIB 521, LIB 601, ID 33, ID 66, ID 77, ID 88

During the past fifteen months, 441 people have been arbitrarily arrested in Kachin State and Muse District of northern Shan State. This included several leading Kachin religious figures, most notably the former KBC head Reverend Dr. Hka Lam Samson, who was arrested on December 5, 2022, in Myitkina airport on his way to Bangkok for medical treatment. He was detained at the Northern Regional Command for over 3 weeks before being charged under Article 17/1 and sent to Myitkyina Jail. On January 30, 2023, another KBC leader, Rev. Hka Lam Gum Hpan Lat was arrested in Myitkyina by SAC troops and detained at the Northern Command. On June 6, 2023, Mr. Zakhung Maw She, a religious leader from Jan Man Kawng Church in Myitkyina was also arrested.

Most of those arrested were accused of links to resistance groups, including 200 men arrested in Hpakant on April 21, 2023. At least thirteen people were beaten during interrogation, and four men are known to have been shot dead by troops after being arrested, while twenty-four have disappeared.

Two youth were arrested simply for giving a three-finger salute when riding a motorcycle in Mogaung. One man was arrested for taking a picture of passing SAC militia cars in Danai. Eight IDPs were arrested from Robert IDP camp and detained for one night in Bhamo police station because their names were not on the IDP household lists.

221 people, half of those arrested, were forced to be human shields by SAC troops, a practice which has increased sharply in recent months. Between June 2022 to March 2023, there were four incidents when up to 21 male villagers at a time were used as human shields during SAC military operations in Danai, Waimaw, Hpakant and Shwegu. From April to July 2023, there were eight incidents when SAC troops forced up to 70 villagers at a time to be human shields, in Shwegu, Hpakant, Momauk and Waimaw.

Women and children have not been spared from being used as human shields, with fatal results. Early in the morning of April 18, about 80 SAC troops entered Kapmawzup and Seng Hpra villages, on the main road from Kamaing to Hpakant, and forced about 70 villagers, including women and girls, to get into two 12-wheel trucks commandeered from local civilians, together with their troops, and drive with them. Along the way, KIA shelled the military convoy, killing one of the women, and injuring three other women and three girls under eighteen.

Women with toddlers are also being made to walk between troops. Early in the morning of 18 May, about 200 SAC troops from ID 88 and LIB 385 walking from Hpakant to Kamaing, entered Hkin Tau village, kicked open the doors of houses and arrested sixteen villagers, including nine women and three toddlers. The villagers were forced to walk between the troops, with men also used as porters. The women and toddlers were released in the evening, but the men were kept until the next day.

ONGOING CLIMATE OF IMPUNITY FOR SEXUAL VIOLENCE

Two recent incidents of military gang-rape in the same night provide clear evidence that SAC troops remain confident of impunity for sexual violence.

As documented by the Shan Human Rights Foundation, on the night of July 30, two women in Suan Long village, Kutkai township, were gang-raped in separate incidents by SAC troops from LIB 569 who were camping near their village. At 10 pm, four soldiers entered the village and split into two pairs. Two soldiers entered the house of a young couple, pointed a gun at the husband and handcuffed him, then gang-raped his pregnant wife. The other two soldiers went to another house, ordered the husband and two children to leave the house, then gang-raped his wife. The next morning, the local abbot complained to the troop commander, who asked the women to identify the rapists. The culprits were then publicly beaten in front of the villagers. The commander warned that if any news leaked to the media about the incident, he would shell their village.

The fact that this group of SAC troops committed gang-rape so brazenly, right in the village where they were stationed, shows clearly that they did not fear serious punishment for their crime. This is precisely the pattern documented by KWAT in the same area in November 2021 and April 2022, when SAC troops committed sexual violence brazenly in villages along the Muse-Mandalay highway where they were stationed.

All the soldiers committing sexual violence were serving as security along the highway, a key road link of the China-Myanmar Economic Corridor. The village where the recent gang-rapes took place was also very close to the path of the planned high-speed Muse-Mandalay railway, one of the flagship projects under China's BRI.

NEW DISPLACEMENT

During the past fifteen months, 13,888 villagers in six townships in Kachin State and Muse District have been newly displaced by fighting and SAC attacks on civilians. Several thousand of these IDPs, particularly those recently displaced by the SAC's latest offensive along the Bhamo-Myitkyina road still dare not return home.

INCREASED SAC PRESSURE TO CLOSE IDP CAMPS

Even while new displacement has been taking place, the SAC authorities have stepped up pressure to close down existing IDP camps in Kachin State and northern Shan State, which house over 107,000 IDPs (according to official UNOCHA figures from July 2023).

Pressure to shut down the camps is not new. Already in 2013, the Naypyidaw authorities began building an IDP resettlement village twelve miles north of Myitkyina called “Ngwi Pyaw San Pya” (meaning Happy Model village), which today houses about 1,500 residents. In 2018, another resettlement village (called “Man Pya San Pya”) was built in Waimaw, where about 400 former IDPs now live. In both locations, small houses were provided, but no land to farm, and once IDPs moved there, they were removed from IDP camp lists, and were no longer eligible to receive monthly rations.

In 2019, under the NLD’s “National Strategy on Resettlement of IDPs and Closure of IDP Camps”, plans were laid for IDPs in Myitkyina and Waimaw to start returning to their original villages south of Myitkyina. The Japanese and Chinese governments provided money for new houses to be built in these villages, and the WFP provided 6 months’ rice for returning IDPs.

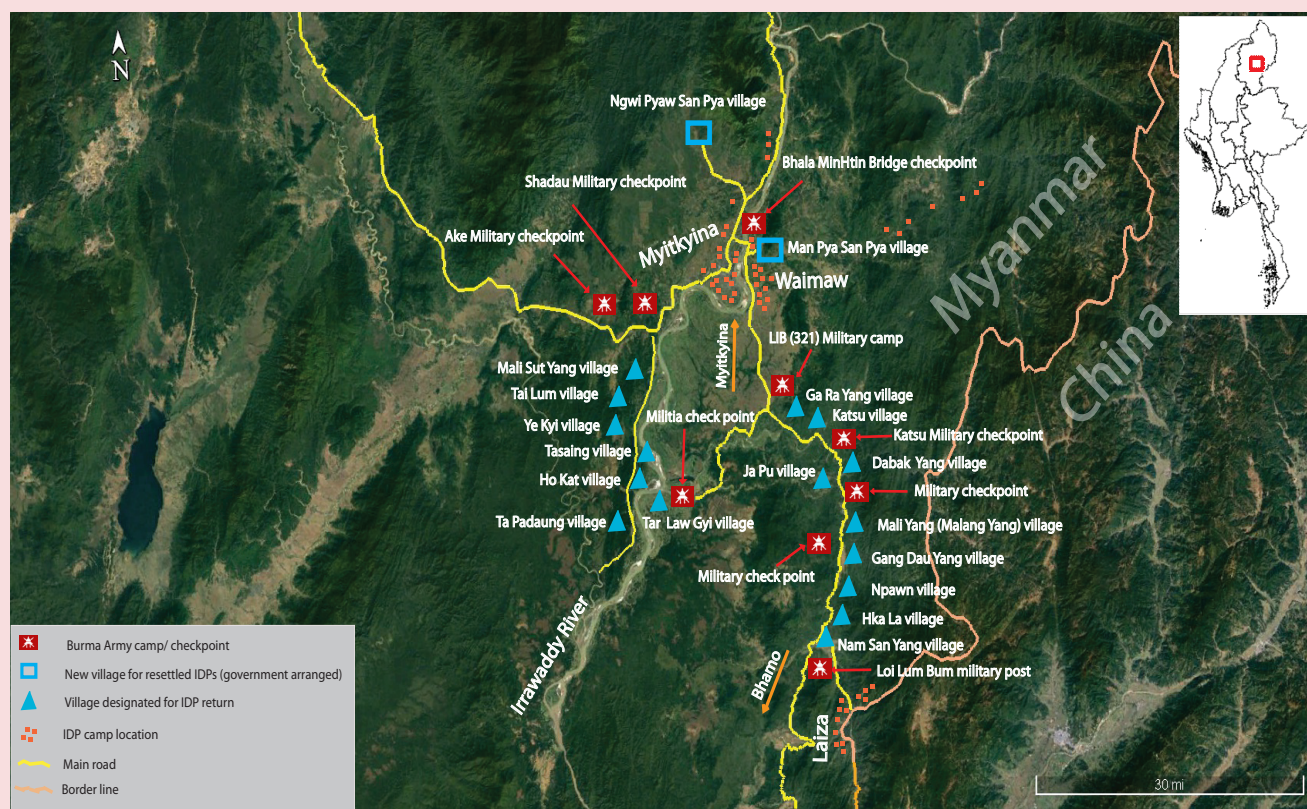

Since the coup, increased pressure by the SAC authorities to shut down the IDP camps appears closely linked to their desire to fast-track Chinese investment, as many of the camps lie near planned BRI projects -- tarnishing the image of stability that the regime wants to project.

Pressure for IDP camp closure in Kachin State

On December 7, 2022, two SAC Ministers – Lt. Gen. Tun Tun Naung, Minister of Border Affairs, and U Aung Tun Khaing, Deputy Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement -- visited two IDP camps in Myitkyina (Jan Mai Kawng Baptist Church camp and Lay Kun Ziun camp), where they urged the IDPs to return home, telling them: “It is not suitable for IDPs to be staying in the town. It is not good for our international image.” They asked IDPs to choose between three options: returning to their original village, moving to a government-arranged resettlement village, or going elsewhere.

On December 10, SAC authorities visited IDP camps in Waimaw and ordered the IDPs to choose between the same three options. The same message was given to IDPs in the Bhamo area on February 2, 2023, when the Kachin State Chief Minister, Hkyet Thing Nan, called a meeting at the Bhamo 5 Mile Hall for leaders of five IDP camps. He also offered help for IDPs to return home.

Villages designated for IDP return from camps in Myitkyina and Waimaw

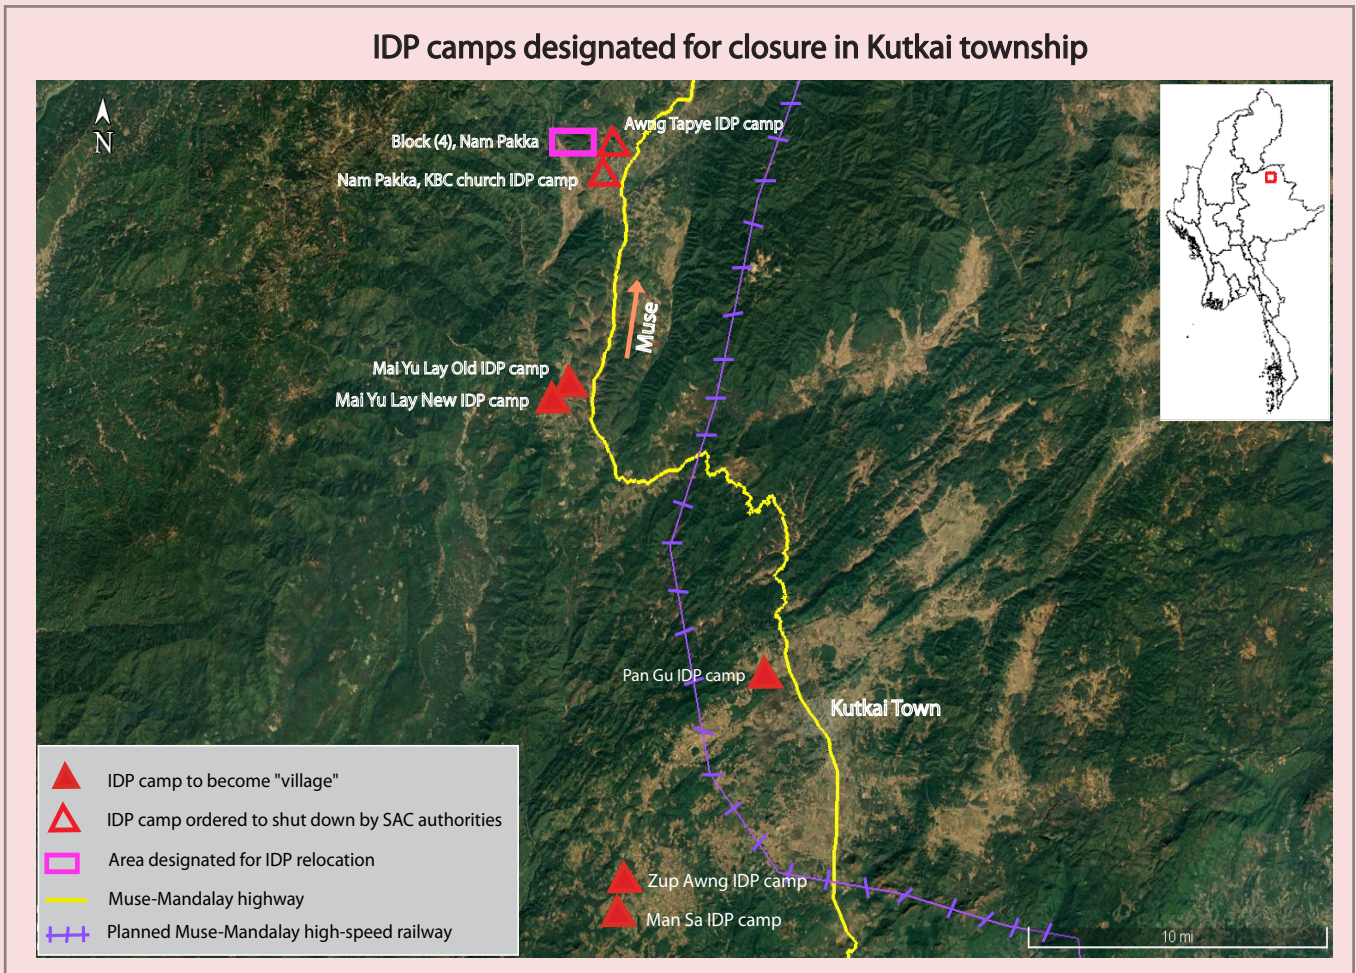

However, by July 2023, only 4,438 IDPs had returned to their original homes in four of the villages designated for IDP return in Myitkyina and Waimaw. Most of these were from IDP camps in the regime-controlled towns of Myitkyina and Waimaw (where over 24,000 IDPs still remain), but some returned from IDP camps in KIO-controlled areas.

Pressure for IDP camp closure in northern Shan State

On March 14, 2023, SAC administrative officials in Kutkai called a meeting of two representatives from seven IDP camps in the Kutkai area, who were informed that five of the camps (where IDPs lived in individual shelters) would soon no longer be recognised as IDP camps, but as regular villages, thus disqualifying them from receiving aid. The two other camps near Nam Pakka (where IDPs lived in barrack-style shelters) would be shut down as soon as IDPs moved out to a nearby resettlement area where they were in the process of building new, individual shelters. Once in the resettlement area, they would no longer be recognised as IDPs, even though they still hoped to return one day to their original villages.

RISKS OF IDP RETURN AMID ONGOING CONFLICT

The reason why the vast majority of IDPs still dare not return to their original villages is lack of guarantees of security due to the ongoing conflict and Burma Army presence in or near their original villages.

A woman from an IDP camp in Myitkyina, who fled in 2011 from Npaw village (about 20 miles south of Myitkyina), explained why she is still staying in the camp:

"We are too afraid to return home. But if the camp closes, we will be forced to return. There are lots of Burma Army checkpoints and camps on the way to our village, and we are also close to the KIO controlled area, so we are in the middle of both armed groups. Last December 15 (2022), some IDPs went back to our village to hold a Christmas ceremony, and early on December 17, two jet fighters dropped bombs near Seng Mai village, about 4 miles away. That afternoon, Burma Army troops came close to our village, so all the villagers fled back to their IDP camps. At midnight on December 19, the Burma Army dropped bombs again on Seng Mai village. In this kind of situation, we are too afraid to return home. I won't be able to sleep if I return. I will always be worrying that I will have to flee again. I also worry about landmines, because we plant hill farms outside the village."

The main factors driving IDPs to return home despite the risks, are difficulty surviving on the meagre rations provided in the camps and desire to try and farm their lands again. The IDPs in Myitkyina and Waimaw receive only between 15,000-20,000 kyat per person per month, while IDPs in KIO-controlled camps receive 13.5 kgs of rice, 1 liter of cooking oil, and 1 packet of salt per month – which they had formerly supplemented by crossing into China to do wage labour, but this became impossible after the Covid border lockdown.

IDPs' fears of renewed conflict are well-founded. On July 3, 2023, large-scale fighting broke out near Namsanyang, one of the villages designated for IDP return, when hundreds of SAC troops launched a new offensive to secure the Bhamo-Myitkyina transport route. Fleeing villagers were shot at by SAC troops, and several injured. Now, the 1,119 IDPs who had returned to Namsanyang have all fled again, leaving the village completely deserted of civilians.

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

KWAT documentation shows an escalation in attacks and abuses against civilians by the SAC regime's forces in Kachin State and northern Shan State since mid-2022, including a sharp increase in the number of victims of aerial bombardment and villagers forced to be human shields.

Most of the abuses have taken place along key transport routes which the regime is attempting to secure to expedite projects under China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI). With conventional warfare failing against the resistance forces, the regime is increasingly resorting to collective punishment of civilians to try and assert control over these contested territories.

This highlights the huge risk that China is taking by pushing ahead with these projects in partnership with the regime. Not only will the regime be unable to guarantee security for the projects, but China will become directly complicit in the regime's escalating abuses.

We therefore make the following calls:

To the UN Security Council:

- To impose a global arms embargo on Burma, and to refer the situation in Burma to the International Criminal Court.

To foreign governments:

- To withhold diplomatic recognition of the coup regime.
- To impose economic sanctions on the military regime's business interests – particularly the Myanmar Oil and Gas Enterprise, and companies supplying aviation fuel to the regime.

To Burma's neighboring countries, including China:

- To provide safe refuge to those fleeing conflict and persecution, and allow them access to humanitarian aid.

To international donors:

- To step up humanitarian aid to existing and new IDPs in northern Burma, prioritizing cross-border channels to ensure that the SAC regime does not block or interfere with aid delivery.
- Not to endorse or subsidize the regime's IDP camp closure program.

To China:

- To stop pushing ahead with BRI projects in Burma amid war and against the wishes of local communities. These projects should be cancelled, and no new investments considered until the military regime is removed and elections held under a new federal democratic constitution, guaranteeing free, prior and informed consent of local communities to any new projects.
